

Pitch Idea for concert flight web application:

We were thinking about doing a web application that allows a user to find flights that are compatible with specific concerts. The user will choose what concert they want to attend in which city and then the web application will give them different options for flights depending on a few other things that the user specified. The flights will be ordered from cheapest to most expensive and also most compatible with their chosen travel plans. The user will be able to choose how many days they want to spend in each city before and after the concert for up to a week on either end. If the user would then like to continue their travels to a third city to attend a second concert, the application would then take care of it.

Pitch Idea for chess.com replica:

This web application would be a similar website to the famous chess.com, in which everyone around the world can play our beloved game chess. This website would only offer a single-player mode, in which you would compute against chess AIs.
